Scammers Are Getting More Creative

You hear stories about people becoming victims of scams and identity theft. Even the smartest person can fall for a scam, because thieves are very creative and sophisticated in their efforts.

Here's a scenario...

You notice a pop-up box that looks like it came from Microsoft. The message provides a number to call to prevent your computer from crashing. When you call, they say your computer AND bank account were hacked. To fix the problem, they instruct you to take money from your account, and deposit it in a Bitcoin ATM to keep your money safe.

Here's another scenario...

You get an email stating you were overcharged for an online purchase and to call. The person answering says they can refund the difference, but needs your credit card number, the 3-digit code on the back, and the expiration date. DO NOT give this information to someone who contacts you.

Scammers are creative and information looks more official than ever. Please be vigilant. If you have doubts, listen to yourself. Verify before giving anyone private information.
